

Silent Line-Up

"Silent Line-Up" is a good warm-up that can show you some things about how your class functions as a group. Students are asked not to speak during the activity. They are asked to line themselves up in a line according to some criteria like alphabetically by first name, or harder, by middle name, or harder yet, by exact age, etc. This activity can lead to some good debriefs about communication, cooperation, and impulse control.
